Enrolment in Catholic Schools

On the issue of the so-called 'baptism barrier', Faith in Our Schools (a research and advocacy group promoting the Christian vision of education as encapsulated in Roman Catholic and Reformed traditions) accused the Department of Education of failing to conduct independent research into what schools are oversubscribed and what is the true extent of that oversubscription.

"Proper, reliable and independent research is simply essential as otherwise national changes will be made to school admission policies based on the political and media influence of secularist lobby groups," Mr Patrick Treacy S.C..
